FALL 2017 CONFERENCE, OCTOBER 20-22, Waupaca

Summer 2017

JEFF NOBLE coach / consultant / speaker / entrepreneur

Jeff is the Founder and CEO of NOBLE INITIATIVES, an organization that provides hope and education to people caring for someone living with a Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD) through online applications and in-person training sessions, demonstrations and consultations. He is also the creator of the Caregiver Kick Start!, an online coaching program that offers education and support to FASD caregivers through live coaching calls, online learning modules and other leading FASD experts.

FASD1oh!

Jeff will lead you through the fundamentals of Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD). The training is communicated in a deliberately 'jargon-free', down to earth style which will ensure that every attendee leaves knowing they can make positive changes in the way they understand, interpret and live/work with individuals affected by an FASD.

Topics covered include: understanding brain dysfunction, primary and secondary disabilities, a model for providing appropriate accommodations, sensory integration and the importance of early intervention.

THE KEYS TO FASD SUCCESS

For parents and caregivers to be successful (and sane) in this lifetime career that they have selflessly devoted themselves to, there are specific elements that will guarantee a winning outcome: Respite, Training, Coaching and Understanding Grief and Loss.

Jeff will provide participants with an intensive overview of the realities of raising/caring for someone with an FASD and the unique demands and challenges that professionals and systems often overlook. Participants are provided with practical, research-based theories and strategies that will focus on the FASD caregiver and building capacity through mentorship and (non-traditional) support systems.

SOCIAL MEDIA AND THE CAREGIVER CONNECTION

Training, education and support for FASD caregivers is difficult to find because it's too expensive, it's hard to find and no one wants to fill in to babysit. Social media can help to decrease the isolation experienced by FASD caregivers. It creates networking opportunities for caregivers to share strategies and suggestions—social media builds connections and bridges the gap between caregivers and frontline staff. (continued pg 4)

FASPP (Foster & Adoptive Support & Preservation Program)

FASPP is an outreach of WFAPA and more specifically our SAAN (Surviving Allegations of Abuse and Neglect) department. FASPP is a peer-driven volunteer network designed to help you. Our highly trained volunteers are here to help you navigate the frontier that is foster care and adoption. Each volunteer has more experience in a different area, but all of them can help with questions outside their area of expertise, as well. Call or email them with your questions.

Message from President Tina Christopherson

Greetings!

Our Foster and Adopted children remind me of the four seasons, as we move along with the seasons, so seems that our lives do too. We have the warmth of Summer, the crispness of Fall, the cold of Winter and freshness of Spring. Warm feelings when things are going well, brittle feelings when things are upsetting, chilled feelings when things are uncomfortable and good feelings when things are refreshing. I know there are seasons that some children stay frozen in. They stay “stuck” in a place where their mind is at and what seems familiar for them.

I have been talking about our children with Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD). Under that umbrella term is described the range of effects that may occur to an individual whose mother drank alcohol during her pregnancy such as: Fetal Alcohol Syndrome (FAS), Alcohol Related Neurodevelopment Disorder (ARND), Alcohol-Related Birth Defects (ARBD) and Partial Fetal Alcohol Syndrome (pFAS). Our Fall Conference will be on FASD. Our speaker will be Jeff Noble who is an amazing man that “gets FASD.” Jeff has been creating a buzz and raising awareness in FASD circles across Canada. He has also been in the United States to speak. He has been teaching front line staff, educators and caregivers, alike about the in’s and out’s of living and supporting someone with FASD. Jeff’s workshops are interactive, enlightening and thought-provoking and will be filled with laughter and A-HA! moments.

You will not want to miss this conference speaker! We will also accept Saturday registration only. Please see the registration form in the newsletter. I look forward to seeing and speaking to you at the Ramada Waupaca!!

Warm thoughts,

Tina

ATTENTION PLEASE! ADOPTION QUILT

I am looking for children who have been adopted and are willing to create a quilt square for our adoption quilt. Not only do they get to create a square, but also tell their story (without identifying themselves). The quilt will be similar to the Foster Care quilt that can be seen at www.wfapa.org. If you know of a child or have a child in your home that was adopted and would like to share your story with others, please contact Sherry Benson: email at misssherry@new.rr.com to receive your quilt square and more information. Due to space, only one quilt square per family will be issued. Thanks!

FRESH START

For each conference WFAPA sponsors, we bless an organization in the community by donating items they need to continue their work. WFAPA contacts an organization in the community of the county that we are having our conference in. We speak with the director of the organization and find out what their needs are. We then reach out to our members via our newsletter and ask that they donate said items when they arrive at the conference.

For our Fall 2017 Conference, WFAPA is pleased to be donating to Foundations For Living, 1421 Churchill Street, Waupaca, WI 54981. The following items have been requested: towels, sheets, blankets, gas/fuel cards from Kwik Trip, grocery gift cards from Aldi, Piggly Wiggly and Pick N Save. Cash donations are also accepted for ink for printers, operating costs, etc.

Note:

WFAPA now accepts CREDIT and DEBIT cards for EVERYTHING including the Auction & Raffle!

LIFE BEGINS HERE

WFAPA is supporting a program to help foster children aging out of care. This program provides a suitcase filled with items to help them as they start out living independently. WFAPA donates the suitcase(s) to an organization in the community that works with aging out foster children or to the Department of Children and Families in that County.

At each conference that WFAPA holds we ask our members via the newsletter to bring in “gently” used or new items that will be helpful for someone just starting out. This includes items such as towels, dishes, pans, cooking utensils, sheet sets, blankets, silverware, cups, coffee pot, blankets, sheets, pillows, etc.

Pick 'n Save

This workshop will teach caregivers and frontline staff alike how to use social media for the purposes of training, learning, educating and as a support network. Social media is a cost effective approach to increasing engagement and support for FASD caregivers.

Jeff is a helper, a leader, and an innovator. His focus is FASD, but his expertise is building community through social media. Using an interactive, yet personal, approach, Jeff delivers relevant, useful, and need-to-know information to help and support frontline workers, educators and caregivers of those living with an FASD.

Along with staying connected through weekly and monthly newsletters that follow Jeff's various adventures as a consultant, blogger, and FASD advocate, Jeff is the creator of FASDFOREVER.com, a blog that delivers content that caregivers can identify with and use in the real world. Jeff is also the moderator of a Facebook Fan Page that is followed by over 7,300 fans worldwide where he spreads awareness, tips and FASD insight.

ADOPTING AND FOSTERING CHILDREN WITH FETAL ALCOHOL SPECTRUM DISORDERS

Parenting has been called the toughest but most fulfilling job in the world. Parenting children with special needs, such as fetal alcohol spectrum disorders (FASD), brings its own set of challenges.

Many parents of children with an FASD are adoptive or foster parents. Some knew about FASD when they welcomed their children into their family, while others did not. In any case, information is the key to success in raising children with an FASD.

Learning about FASD can help parents understand how their children are affected, which parenting strategies work best, and how to get services and support. For people who want to adopt or foster a child with an FASD, knowing the facts can help them make an informed decision.

WHAT IS FASD?

“FASD” is an umbrella term describing the range of effects that can occur in an individual whose mother drank alcohol during pregnancy. These effects may include physical, mental, behavioral, and/or learning disabilities with possible lifelong implications. The term FASD is not intended for use as a clinical diagnosis. It refers to conditions such as fetal alcohol syndrome (FAS), alcohol-related neurodevelopmental disorder (ARND), and alcohol-related birth defects (ARBD). In the United States, FASD occurs in about 10 per 1,000 live births, or about 40,000 babies per year.(1)

There is little information available about FASD and adoption or foster care. One study of children in foster care in Washington State revealed a rate of FAS 10 to 15 times higher than in the general population, suggesting that children in foster care are more likely to have an FASD.(2) Estimates for international adoptions vary by country. In Russian orphanages, the rate of FAS alone has been estimated at 1 to 10 per 100.(3)

MEETING THE CHALLENGES ASSOCIATED WITH FASD

Brain damage and physical defects are the primary disabilities associated with FASD. Lifelong behavioral or cognitive problems may include:

- Mental retardation
- Learning disabilities
- Hyperactivity
- Attention deficits
- Problems with impulse control, social skills, language, and memory

These challenges can lead to other problems called secondary disabilities, which may include:

- Disrupted school experience
- Alcohol and substance abuse
- Mental illness
- Dependent living
- Problems with employment
- Inappropriate sexual behavior
- Involvement in the criminal or juvenile justice system
- Confinement (prison or inpatient treatment for mental health or substance abuse problems)(4)

A child with an FASD is likely to need services throughout his or her life and may never be able to live independently. The lifetime cost for one child with FAS can be $2 million.(5) Despite their challenges, children with an FASD have a number of strengths. For example, they tend to be caring, creative, determined, and eager to please.(6) They also respond well to structure, consistency, concrete communication, and close supervision. With a supportive home, an early diagnosis, and appropriate services, many children with an FASD can avoid secondary disabilities and reach their full potential.(4)

GATHERING INFORMATION

Many children who have an FASD lack an accurate diagnosis and their problems may not be clear. Prospective parents may request a copy of a child's complete medical and family history. However, because records may not tell the whole story, they may also ask specific questions about:

- Possible prenatal exposure to alcohol or drugs
- The physical and mental health of the mother and any siblings
- The developmental history of the child, including possible delays
- Independent evaluations from a physician

Most States require adoption and foster care agencies to share information with prospective parents about the health and social history of the child and birth parents. Some States require more information sharing than others, but few specifically address alcohol.(7) Full investigation and disclosure is best for everyone so that placements are successful, parents are prepared, and children get the help they need.

CONCLUSION

Parenting offers many rewards, despite its hurdles. Those who choose to become a parent or caregiver to a child with an FASD experience great joy along with the challenges. The child can benefit from a stable, loving home with parents and caregivers who understand his or her needs. Ultimately, adoptive and foster parents can change the outlook for individuals with an FASD, one day at a time.
