Concerns & Myths

There are several concerns about foster care and adoption that may prevent many people from accepting "someone else's child"

- Do I have to be rich?
- Can I be single?
- Do I have to have parenting experience?
- Can I love a child who is not my own?

A broad range of people from various backgrounds and income levels have cared for and loved children by becoming foster and adoptive parents.

"The training I received at the WFAPA conference was invaluable."

Regarding WFAPA Conference

Reality

It is true that in raising a child you take a risk. But this is true whether the child is yours by birth or foster care/adoption. Over the years, thousands of families have fostered/adopted children who have grown up to become happy, successful, well-adjusted adults. You can love someone else's child and help him or her to become a happy, healthy, self-confident adult.

FOSTER CARE

Foster Care is the temporary placement in your home for a child who has been removed from his/her home due to abuse, neglect, or dependency. The goal for most foster children is to return to their parent(s) when the circumstances that led to the foster placement have been resolved. However, when children cannot return home, they find permanence through adoption, guardianship, or other means.

KINSHIP CARE

Kinship Care is a placement for a child with either an appropriate relative or "like kin".

RESPIRE CARE

It is a vital support service to full-time foster parents who do not have natural supports to care for foster children for a needed break. As a respite foster provider, you have the option to care for children according to your schedule and availability.

SAAN

Surviving Allegations of Abuse and Neglect

SAAN is a peer driven support network, the purpose of which is to minimize the trauma of foster and adoptive families while undergoing an allegation without compromising the integrity of that investigation.

Foster parents welcome children into their homes who bring their histories and issues along with them. For this reason, foster and adoptive parents are at a higher risk of having an allegation against them.

SAAN is here to provide information to support you throughout the investigation process.

To Contact SAAN: Please go to our website, www.wfapa.org and click on SAAN or FASPP.
